Some Royal Portraits

Miss Emma Siboni, formerly of St. Louis, has lately been commissioned by the Dowager Empress of Russia to paint miniature portraits of her grandchildren, the three children of the Grand Duchess Xenia. They were painted from photographs sent to Miss Siboni by the Dowager Empress. These pictures, together with others by the young artist, have lately been exhibited in the Anderson Art

SWORD-BEARER EGAN
AND QUEEN VICTORIA

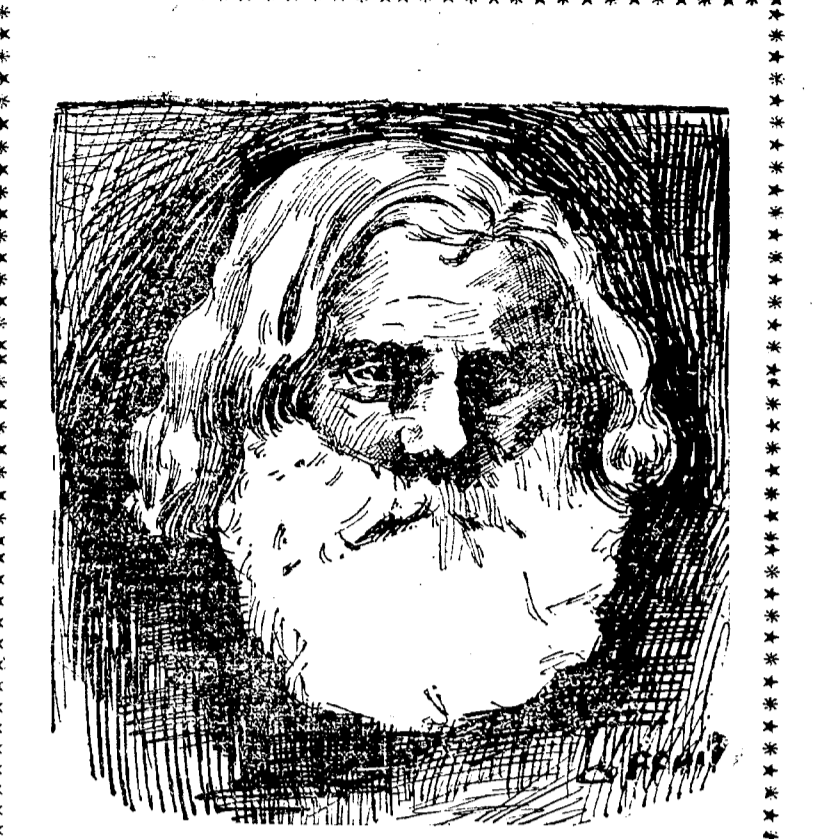

DUBLIN, April 20.—James F. Egan, who recently distinguished himself by refusing to hand the sword of Dublin to Queen Victoria, continues to share public attention with her Majesty. His action is much censured and much praised.

"It will yield nothing to any Irishman in respect for the individuality of the aged lady," Mr. Egan wrote to the Town Clerk. "But I cannot join in any act of public courtesy toward the Queen of a State which has tried me upon charges that were false and sent me to suffer for nine years in English dungeons—the State that still holds me in with the degradation of a ticket-of-leave man."

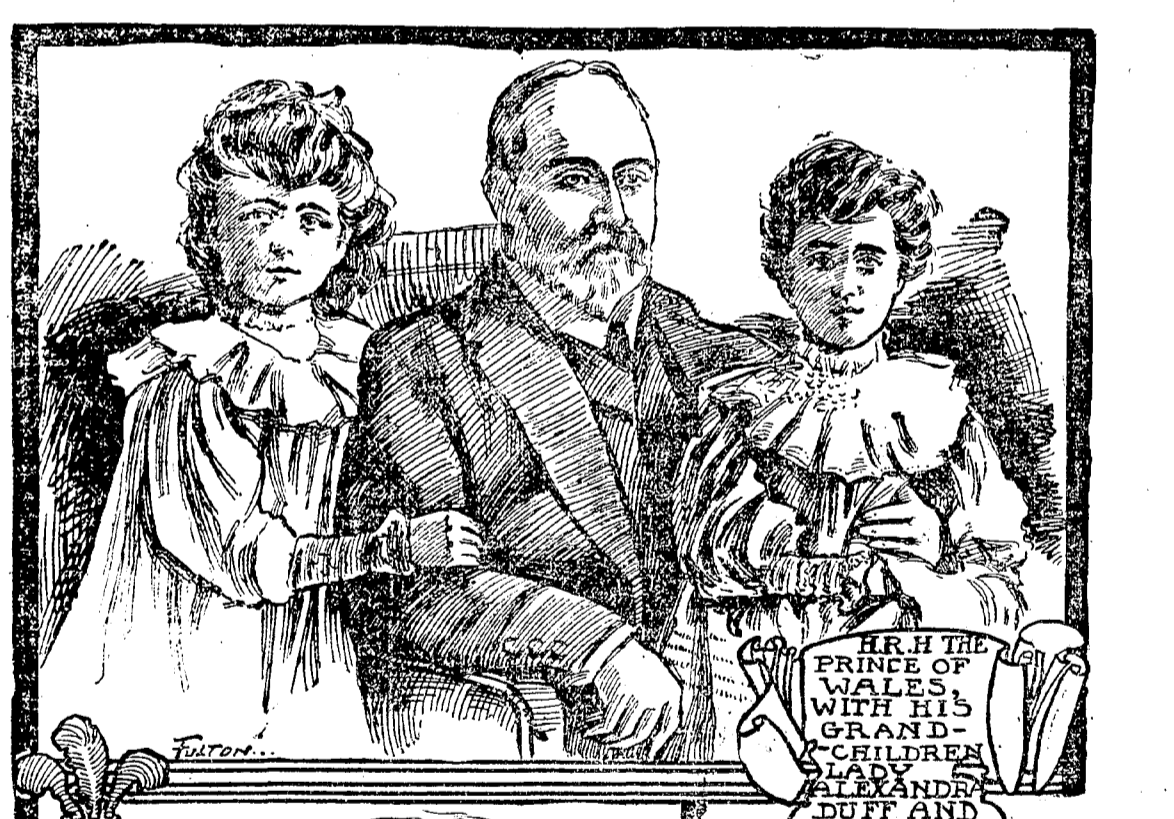

There was much comment at the time Mr. Egan became sword-bearer, because Noah Ruby's annual "birthday party" was given recently in the Piscataway, N. J., township poorhouse. It celebrated the one hundred and twenty-eighth anniversary of his birth. For years the friends and acquaintances of Ruby have called to see him on his birthday, giving him little gifts and delicacies. As his birthday fell upon Sunday this year the observance was a quiet one. The farmers were out in their usual numbers, and all day long the little parlor of the township house was crowded. To all inquiries Ruby said he was in the best of health, and intended to live to be 200.

that looks on danger with bored indifference. But the signal was given the other day when the youthful Belgian anarchist fired two shots at him while he was playing cards in a railway coach. In the uproar that followed the Prince was the coolest man on the scene. After urging the excited bystanders not to injure his would-be murderer, the Prince returned to the car, reassured the frightened Princess of Wales, and resumed his game as if nothing had happened.

A few years ago in Southern France, where the Prince was visiting, an unusually severe earthquake occurred that stampeded everybody in the hotel where the Prince was staying. Excited attendants burst into the Prince's bedroom—the shock occurred in the early morning hours—beseeching him to flee for his life. The Prince blinked calmly at the alarmists, and calmly remarking that he wasn't going to lose his heavy sleep for any vagrant earthquake, turned over in bed and went to sleep again.

To these truly British traits the Prince adds the bonhomie and tact of the polished man of the world. So it is little wonder that the loyal Briton's sentiment toward him is best expressed in the following song:

"For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

NOTHING WILL DIE.
When will the sun be a-weary of flowing
Under my eye?
When will the wind be a-weary of blowing
Over the sky?
When will the clouds be a-weary of beating
And nature die?
Never; oh never; nothing will die.
The stream flows,
The wind whistles,
The clouds float,
The heart beats,
Nothing will die.

Nothing will die;
All things will change,
Thro' eternity.
The world will change,
Thro' eternity.
Autumn and Summer
Are gone long ago;
Earth is dry to the center,
But spring is a-renewer.
A Spring aye and strange,
Shall make the winds blow
Round and round,
Thro' and thro',
Here and there,
Till the air
And the ground
Shall be filled with life anew.

The world was never made;
It will change, but it will not fade.
So let the wind rage;
For even and morn
Ever will be
Thro' eternity.
Nothing was born;
Nothing will die;
All things will change.
—Alfred Tennyson.

SHIP KNEW.
This story is told of a precocious little girl of 10. She is the daughter of an attractive lady of society, whom the family doctor was visiting for influenza. He felt her pulse gravely and tenderly, holding her wrist after the orthodox manner of a ladies' doctor, as he sat beside her in the drawing-room. As he did so he became aware that the child had her grave eyes, full of inquiry, fixed upon him.

"You don't know what I am doing," said the medical man lightly to the young miss.

"Yes I do," was the prompt reply. "You are making love to mamma."

LESSER LIGHT.
He walked the earth in glory and in pride,
And lived in splendour; yet, like a
Majestic, robed in purple state, he died.

But now—a ghost.
No sunbeams pulsing in the quiet veins,
No gusty laughter—wan and draped in white.

—Carl L. Sparrow, in Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly for March.

King Oscar Gives the Workingmen the Glad Hand

(Copyright, 1900, by Associated Press.)
LONDON, April 21.—This has been a sad week for the British Generals. The brewing storm that last week was overhanging their heads, reaching its electric spark through the publication of Lord Roberts' censures regarding the engagement at Spion Kop. It descended in a merciless torrent from an unanimous press.

At the present moment General Buller could find no better way to endear himself to the hearts of the people than to request his recall, but one who knows the Natal commander intimately tells the representative of the Associated Press that he is far too thick-skinned to take such a step and will stick to his post despite all criticisms and avalanches of adverse public opinion.

Nor is Lord Kitchener spared in the present outbreak. There is a story going the rounds of the clubs that the "great man of the South" has been severely sat upon by the "little man of Afghanistan," and specific instances of disagreements between them are quoted. Once, so gossip says, with a mysterious reference to private letters and such inner sources of information, Lord Roberts felt constrained to put Lord Kitchener in his place.

"I wish you to understand," Kandahar is reported to have said to Khartoum, "if you please, that I command this army. You are my chief of staff." I don't seek your advice, and I shall decide myself on what is to be done and shall issue my orders accordingly."

No documentary evidence has been obtained to prove the truth of this, and it may be pure invention, but it has already been printed in London and originated in much the same way as the first stories arose regarding the fiascos of Generals Gatacre, Buller and Methuen, which were only too fully borne out by later officials' and detailed accounts.

With regard to Lord Kitchener there is another story current which insists that after the Colenso disaster the Queen demanded that Buller be superseded by the conqueror of the Khafra and that the Cabinet protested, but compromised by sending Lord Roberts as a figurehead. This is considered rather improbable; but if true, the Cabinet has caught a tartar in the shape of Lord Roberts.

ROBERTS' ENGLAND'S IDOL.
It is marvelous to note the whole-heartedness of the English public trust in this old General. Not one paper has attached to its criticism of General Buller—his predecessor in the command—one iota of unfairness or self-interest. This, perhaps, is explained by the universal recognition of the fact that the Field Marshal has little to gain by this campaign, and that he gave up all to which long and brilliant service entitled him in order to serve his country. Whatever the outcome of the Boer war Lord Roberts' name would stand in English military annals as one of the most successful and best-loved of her commanders. This fact is ever before the public, and they believe the Commander-in-Chief in South Africa to be miles above jealousies or rivalries that might actuate other Generals.

A DEMOCRATIC KING.
The visit of King Oscar of Sweden and Norway to England, though undertaken inognito, has attracted a surprisingly small amount of interest. The spectacle of that monarch, burly, despite his seventy-one years, and standing head and shoulders above his fellows—pushing his way past the station barmaids to shake hands with the Swedish workmen who had cheered him as he entered the London depot, can for human impulsiveness be scarcely exceeded in the actions of the most democratic ruler. King Oscar is no stranger to England. He has paid frequent visits to this country, and his abilities as historian and writer upon abstract subjects have gained for him honors and degrees from the English universities. Of all European potentates he is probably the most cultured, the tallest and the most impulsive.

The possibility of trouble between the United States and Turkey has attracted passing comment in England, though the average newspaper reader is much more interested in the Croton dam riot. In connection with the former subject the Birmingham Post is responsible for the statement that Turkey has placed several important commissions with the Krupp, to be completed before the end of the year, which include better machine guns than are at present used by any European power, and 100,000 Mausers, which, immediately upon their receipt, will be delivered to the Turkish First Army Corps.

SPAIN GETS A SCARE.
Spain is apparently scared by post-bellum publications showing how many authorities thought the United States could have been well advised immediately to attack the Canaries for Premier Siveria's Ministry is now sending to these islands a number of heavy guns for defensive purposes. One of the frequent comments heard in English naval circles is that America should have captured the Canaries at the outbreak of the Spanish war.

The great chalk headland at Dover known as Shakespeare Cliff, is to be leveled in order to give the new rapid-firing batteries of that harbor's defenses a better range.

The recently announced death of Thomas Dudley from bubonic plague at Sydney recalls the terrible story in connection with the loss of the yacht Mignonette, of which was the master in 1884, when she foundered. Dudley, with two other men and a boy was adrift for many days in an open boat. During this time the men killed the boy and tried to eat his body, for which, after their rescue, they were sentenced to death in England.

Barnes, with full knowledge of the truth, tries to avert the consequences of all the trouble that has been caused by the vendetta, and by a peculiar mishap is placed the same train with Miss Anstruther. The result is that the two lovers have killed Paolo. He falls in love with her, and to gain an introduction delicately tries to starve her into submission. He eventually does so, and then, as a French agent of the railroad train. On learning her full name, knowing that she is the daughter of the man Barnes sets about to strangle her, but fails. The servant, Tomasse, with the Corsican vivacity, is turning Maria's hair, and she is looking at him in the interim Maria has met Anstruther, as we said before, and they are to be married. GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The theatrical sensation of this week is undoubtedly David Henderson's new extravaganza, "An Arabian Nights or, All Baba and the Forty Thieves," which Mr. Monrose introduces his splendidly equipped company. Every night the immense Grand is packed to the doors, and before the rise of the curtain the standing room is sold.

ously visible. The scene on the occasion of their first appearance on Sunday evening was the most brilliant that the theatre has ever witnessed. The audience contained the largest number of representatives of the nobility and gentry that has ever held, and the enthusiasm was such that the representatives of every calling and business were largely in the theatre. The nobility and gentry, the merchants had delegates, and their assistants and under-studies, a large number among the most liberal in their class, and the most distinguished of the particular line of business of the program presented threw up their hands and hearts in the most hearty approval of the entertainment. Sufficient to say that company achieved an individual triumph, and that the production is the most rich and beautiful ever presented in this theatre. Some of the scenes, the scenery and transformation dazzle the eye with their brilliancy and superb harmony. The color and light effects are such that for many weeks to crowded houses may be regarded as a certainty. We honestly believe that the production is worthy of their patronage and call attention to it.

fact that their will be matinees both Saturday and Sunday, on both of which occasions a great will be obtainable in the orchestra for 25 cents.

THE TIVOLI.

Greater than "The Idol's Eye," is the general opinion of the press and public regarding the production of "The Wizard of the Nile," at the Tivoli Opera House, which is crowding to the top of the list of the most interesting on its second week, commencing on the 10th inst.

The Tivoli company has again succeeded in doing better than France, and the Tivoli company has again did in the "The Wizard of the Nile" and it is generally known that "The Wizard of the Nile" is the biggest success of the Tivoli company ever had. Nothing has ever been seen on the Tivoli stage than its production of "The Wizard of the Nile" and it has been the most comic opera will have a very long run. Although the promises made advance by the Tivoli were to the effect that this is and will give a great success.

learning all of this, watches him and offers him his hand at the very moment of his triumph. Traveling from Paris to Ajaccio arriving in time to stop the devilment of the Corsicans, and finally returning to the past, so it will be in the future Americans will always be found on the spot when necessary as in the story "Barney's Luck."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The thirteenth sensation of this week is undoubtedly David Henderson's famous extravaganza, "An Arabian Girl, or All Baba and the Forty Thieves." The new showman introduces his spectacle with a magnificent program which might light the immense Grand is packed the doors, and before the rise of the curtain the splendid room scene is conspicuously visible. The first act, consisting of their first appearance on Sunday evening was most remarkable. The theatrical company has attracted a large number of people who have never seen such a performance. It has ever held, and the enthusiasm extraordinary. Representatives of every calling and business were there. T. F. Nelson, president of the city, and several judges. Stage managers and principal comedians had delegated their duties to their assistants and understudies, a few of whom were present to see the playhouse. Even those of these engaged the particular line of business of the management came through up their hands and candidly admitted the superiority of the entertainment. Sufficient say that among company achieved an individual success and a successful success—that the production of the most beautiful ever presented in this city. Scenery, costumes, ballets and marches are all perfect. The music is played by their brilliancy and superb harmony color. That "Arabian Girl" will run for many weeks to crowded houses must be evident. The management commend it to our readers as worthy their patronage and call attention to effect that they will be met with both satisfaction and success. On occasions a good reserved seat will be obtainable in the orchestra for 25 cents.

THE TIVOLI.

Creston the "Idiot's Eye," is the general opinion of the press and public as to the production of the comic opera "The Wizard of the Nile," at the Tivoli Opera House. The growing popularity of the doors nightly, and the entering on its second week, tomorrow. The Tivoli company has again secured a brilliant success. Danziels and his big New York company did in the "The Wizard of the Nile" and it is generally known that "The Wizard of the Nile" is the best thing that has been seen here since the American comedy ever had. Nothing prettier has ever been seen on the Tivoli stage than its production of "The Wizard of the Nile." It will be a long time before the comic opera will have a very long run. Although the promises made advance by the Tivoli were to the effect that it would be a great success, it is
